

How about using your skills to make an IMPACT?

This is your chance!

We change the world through helping cities to become more sustainable and dramatically reduce their environmental impact. We have a simple but passionate goal: connect those who already drive change and have them share their experience with like-minded experts from other cities. Welcome to the URBAN FUTURE Global Conference, the world's largest meeting of the most forward thinking and innovative changers of cities.

Our passion translates into success: the URBAN FUTURE is the fastest growing urban event. But cities around the world are thirsty for knowhow about how to make cities more sustainable. That's why we'll launch the CityChangers Podcast in early 2020. To support our team in producing this weekly show, we are hiring a

Podcast Production Intern (m/f)

In this full- or part-time position based in Graz, you will work directly with both, our CEO as well as our communications director in developing, producing and marketing the podcast. We need you to be available between 3 and 6 months and offer an intern compensation of 800 EUR per month. Based upon your experience, we're prepared to negotiate that package.

You are

- experienced in audio recording, basic audio editing and understand radio storytelling
- crazy about media & communications
- highly passionate about your work and a strong communicator
- well organized with a high degree of self-motivation and fluent in English

You enjoy

- an international work environment
- starting something from scratch
- making a difference with your work

You will

- prepare interview briefings and tech setup for recordings
- handle our audio files and do basic editing
- coordinate external partners & our freelance journalists from around the globe

Are you intrigued? Then tell us about yourself, your experience, why you want to join us as well as when and how many hours you'd be available. Send your application to Gerald at gerald@urban-future.org